Greeting from Tiger Town!

The Clemson campus is once again bustling with the sound of students who have returned home for summer, the buzz of faculty and staff who are also back on campus, and the sound of cheerful birds singing. It is the time of year when our campus has taken on a new energy and excitement as we look forward to a new academic year.

Clemson – along with the entire region – is celebrating life and legacy under the leadership of our president, Dr. Jim Clements. He has set a vision of transforming our university into one of the best in the world. This vision is rooted in our commitment to our students, our faculty and staff, and our community. We are building on an even brighter future for us and our future generations. You can read President Clements’ article here.

Students in two Clemson University programs will benefit from scholarships and course reimbursement, resulting from a $100,000 gift from a former student. One of the largest gifts in its history, $250,000 in scholarships for CS-100 and 2051 for course reimbursement at Clemson are funded with a $250,000 gift from former student Zachary Ross.\n
This gift is intended to support students like himself, who could not afford to attend the university without financial assistance. The gift will help to reduce the financial burden on students and allow them to focus on their academic pursuits. It will provide a significant financial aid package for students who would not otherwise have been able to afford to attend Clemson.

The gift will also benefit students enrolled in the Low Economy studies program, which is an interdisciplinary program that allows students to explore the intersection of science and engineering. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in engineering and science in a variety of fields, including computer science, biochemistry, and physics.\n
We are all fortunate to have a leader dedicated to the legacy of Clemson University and our nation. The university’s commitment to excellence and innovation is a source of pride for us all. Please join us in supporting these programs and helping to create a brighter future for our students and our community.

Thank you for your continued support.

Go Tigers!
Greafully yours,

---

We are excited to announce the special guests who will present at the fall lecture. Please mark your calendars and make sure to attend these events to hear from some of the most influential minds in their respective fields.

---

Please mark your calendars for these special events. More information will be available soon. Thank you for your continued support.

---

Thank you for your continued support of Clemson. We are grateful for your generosity and for your commitment to our university. Together, we can make a difference in the lives of our students and our community.